

Sounds like "Goff"
nu-lok™ Gough SnoGuards™

To help keep snow from avalanching off sloped roofs

Some of your clients have buildings whose roofs and gutters become damaged from sliding snow and ice. This also presents a hazard to pedestrians and property below.

Variations of this original SnoGuard dating back to 1924 have been made to fit all types of roofs for Preventative Maintenance and Life Safety - for over 80 years.

You will find them on countless churches, schools, village halls, libraries, museums, businesses and fine residences from Chicago's Holy Name Cathedral to residences in the mountains of Utah and Colorado to the copper dome of Utah's Supreme Court Building and in the New England area.

In photos "A" and "B" below, Gough SnoGuards are being installed on a Nu-Lok slate roof system, which uses regular slate but saves almost half the material cost of a slate roof.
